ASRY's new operations general manager, Jos Goris, brings with him over 20 years of experience

Bahrain's ASRY ship and rig repair yard has appointed Jos Goris as the new general manager of the operations division. Mr Goris brings more than 20 years' worth of shipping experience with global leaders such as Damen, Maersk and Shell, with over 12 years of that being in shiprepair yards across Asia and the Americas. He will lead the newly restructured operations division, which is the backbone of the yard's repair capabilities.

ASRY chief executive, Nils Kristian Berge, said the appointment was "another step in ASRY's evolution to becoming the region's primary maritime hub. Jos's previous experience both client-side and yard-side, will provide a strategic advantage as ASRY continues to improve its internal efficiencies and increase its operational excellence.”

Goris, a Dutch national, spent the previous four years as managing director in the Shiprepair & Conversion division of Damen Shiprepair in Europe. Prior to that Goris was fleet manager at AP Moller-Maersk & Maersk for five years, having already completed fifteen years in a variety of senior positions at P&O Nedlloyd BV in the Netherlands, Unithai Shipyard in Thailand, and Shell Tankers.
